WEEKLY

To meet a growing need for a regular and reliable means of communicating with faculty, staff and students, the Office of College Relations, with this issue, begins publication of WEEKLY, a newsletter designed to keep all members of the college community abreast of the latest events of interest campus-wide.

WEEKLY will serve as a supplement to ACCENT: PLATTSBURGH STATE, which now will be published quarterly, and INSIGHT, which will be reserved as a fast vehicle of communication for late-breaking and important news.

We hope that WEEKLY proves to be an important source of information for you, and that you will submit news items and comments on the publication to James E. Leach, our news bureau director.

Classes began Wednesday for the largest student body in the College's 83-year history. A record 4,680 full-time graduate and undergraduate students added to part-time enrollments brought the total student population this year to more than 6,000.

Forty-six new faculty have been added to Plattsburgh's professional staff to serve the increased enrollment and to replace retiring faculty and faculty on leave.

Three new College dormitories and a new dining hall on Rugar Street will help to house and feed the increasing number of resident students. A new life sciences building becomes fully operational this fall, as does the new 22-bed College infirmary on the banks of the Saranac River.

STUDENT ASSOCIATION ESTABLISHES SCHOLARSHIP FUND

The Plattsburgh State Student Senate has established a $10,000 scholarship fund with the Plattsburgh College Foundation. Of the amount granted to the Foundation from student activity fees, $5,000 will be used to provide scholarship assistance for incoming freshmen, and the remaining $5,000 will be placed in a Foundation endowment fund to provide future student aid.

The Student Association bill establishing the fund cites "drastic increases in educational costs...reduced parental contributions...cuts in Federal aid allocations...the lack of summer and part-time employment...the higher interest rates and greater difficulty in obtaining guaranteed bank loans..., and the present lack of support that exists, particularly in respect to the freshman student," as reasons for establishment of the fund.

College Foundation President Fred P. Merrihew termed establishment of the scholarship fund "a mature and forthright approach to meeting the financial crisis which faces the college student of today."

TWO UNDERGRADUATES SEATED ON ALUMNI BOARD OF DIRECTORS

For the first time in its history, the Plattsburgh Alumni Association Board of Directors has seated two undergraduates as full voting members.

The two -- Miss Bennie Riley, junior child-family service major from Oneida, and Robert Rodriguez, junior political science major from Durham -- join 12 alumni on the legislative body that sets policy for the 8,000-plus member association.

Malcolm R. Lavery, director of alumni relations, introduced the two at a board meeting Saturday as "excellent undergraduate representatives who will provide valuable input to alumni programs."

STUDENT GRIEVANCE BOARD

Dr. Leroy Piccard, associate dean of students, has asked WEEKLY to call student attention to existence of a College-wide Student Grievance Board. Established in 1971 and currently chaired by Piccard, the board will:

- hear student grievances involving one or more faculties.
- hear student grievances concerning departments with no established grievance policy.
- review decisions of departmental grievance committees.

Except in cases where students wish to have the board review departmental grievance decisions, a student initiates the grievance procedure in a discussion with Piccard. Review of departmental grievance decisions must be initiated by petitioning the Vice President for Student Affairs, Willard Flynt.

Piccard explained to WEEKLY that the Grievance Board is empowered to hear student grievances in all areas -- not merely academic grievances.

A full description of the organization, jurisdiction and procedures to the board is outlined in the 1972-73 student handbook.

PLATTSBURGH A PILOT INSTITUTION IN HIGHER EDUCATION MANAGEMENT

Plattsburgh State has been chosen as a base for a pilot project in the development of new and emerging practices for management in higher education. The cooperative effort involves Plattsburgh and the SUNY Central Administration in Albany with the National Center for Higher Education Management at the Western Interstate Commission on Higher Education (WICHE).

Development of sophisticated formulas, computer programs and models gives the Office of Records, Analytical Studies and Long Range Planning the ability to simulate management decisions and predict their effects. "The chief advantage of such models," says Assistant to the President Bill Dempsey, "is that financial implications of decisions become apparent before the decisions are actually made."

The two models currently in use on campus indicate (1) effects on other disciplines of course offerings in a given discipline, and (2) schedules of future costs relating to academic disciplines.

"The long range effect," says Dempsey, "could be the ability to have more flexibility and autonomy in operating the College from within."

Only one other college in the Nation, Fullerton College in California, has currently implemented the WICHE management tools.

FOOD SERVICE NEGOTIATIONS CONTINUE BETWEEN SA AND FSA

Representatives of the Student Association and the Faculty-Student Association are continuing to negotiate solutions to the problems encountered with this year's revised meal plans.

To date, negotiations have succeeded in resolving the problem of discrepancies in individual dining hall policies and in extending dining hall hours for breakfast and lunch. According to student senator Pro-Tem Craig Borner, one of the Student Senate representatives in the food service negotiations, revision of the policy which prohibits second helpings of the main course was discussed in a meeting Tuesday, and the FSA has promised further information concerning the seconds policy and possible recommendations for a solution to complaints about the lack of seconds at a meeting scheduled October 10.

Borner also explained to WEEKLY that there is student confusion about the policies on the booklets of "seconds coupons" which may be purchased from FSA offices by meal plan subscribers. According to Borner, the $10 booklets are a $12 value and may be used either for second helpings of the main dish in the campus dining halls, or in the Macdonough Hall Snack Bar and Pub. That policy, he says, has been in existence since the Snack Bar and Pub reopened as a result of the efforts of the SA.

FURTHER INSTRUCTIONS ON VOTER REGISTRATION...

Students who will be receiving absentee ballots and absentee registration forms from their local boards of election as a result of the Student Association's voter registration drive are instructed to:

COMMITTEES MOVE TOWARD MINORITIES STUDIES PROPOSALS

Vice President for Student Affairs Willard C. Flynt yesterday convened his committee to review proposals for establishment on campus of a minorities cultural center. At press time, prior to the meeting, Flynt expected his committee to discuss proposals for location of the center; review the purposes and functions to be served by the center; and discuss possible operational timetables and budgets for the center.

Vice President for Finance and Management Bernard J. Seawell last week summoned the initial meeting of his committee to review means of supporting proposals for implementation of new minorities studies programs on campus. Though some general suggestions for possible means of funding minorities studies were advanced at that meeting (foundation funding, federal grants, support from campus constituencies, benefit performances, etc.) it was the consensus of the committee members that the true work of the committee -- the actual location of sources of funding -- would begin after other committees working toward implementation of minority studies had advanced concrete proposals.

Assistant to the President Don Garratt, who is establishing an advisory group to develop a positive program of community relations for minority students, reported that committee members have been selected and the first meeting of the group will be held next week.

The last issue of WEEKLY (November 9) reported the various courses in minority studies which will be offered on campus during the second semester.
